

The Architectural League of New York Announces 2024 League Prize Competition Call for Entries

NEW YORK, NY, November 29, 2023 -- The Architectural League of New York has announced “Dirty” as the competition theme for the 43rd annual Architectural League Prize for Young Architects + Designers. The League Prize is an annual, anonymous portfolio competition open to architects and designers based in North America who are ten years or less out of a bachelor’s or master’s degree program. It is one of the most prestigious design awards for young practitioners.

The theme asks entrants “to look beyond their presentations of professionalism, respectability, and expertise” and demonstrate how they “reject sanitized ways of working with built, natural, and political environments” by showing their “dirty ways and dirty things.”

The Young Architects + Designers Committee, a group selected each year from past winners of the League Prize, develops the competition theme and selects the jury. The members of this year’s committee are Sarah Aziz, Rodrigo Escandón Cesarman, and Maggie Tsang. The competition jury will include Julie Bargmann, Ersela Kripa, Ann Lui, and Ben Nicholson, along with the members of the Young Architects + Designers Committee.

The League Prize is organized by The Architectural League’s Program Director Anne Rieselbach and Program Manager Zoe Fruchter.

Submissions are due by 11:59 p.m. ET on Thursday, February 15, 2024.

For more information on this year’s theme, eligibility requirements, and the submission process, please contact Program Manager Zoe Fruchter at fruchter@archleague.org or visit archleague.org/LP24.
